

Grahame and Ros Rees have spent most of their lives on an isolated sheep station in Western NSW. In 2002 they moved to Bathurst to bring their 2 children to high school. During this time Grahame was able to use his skills to teach Low Stress Stockhandling and Livestock marketing to over 1,000 people across Australia. After the drought took a toll on their livestock business, they started looking for an income source that was not affected by the weather or commodity prices. Network marketing was not an option, however when they saw ACN, it just made sense and it was an easy decision to join ACN.

Grahame and Ros have succeeded with ACN, because they decided right from the start to be “Coachable” and follow the ACN system. They found that by attending the training and making sure their team knew the value of attending the training their business grew quickly. Even though Grahame is still quite busy with his training business, he understands that nothing is more important than caring for one’s downline.

They feel ACN is aligned with their sense of purpose, to teach and empower others to take control of their lives.

“ACN has already allowed us to make many friends in Australia, New Zealand and USA; We work together, make money together and have fun together. What other business allows you to do that?”

Grahame and Ros know that already ACN has given them personal growth , however they believe this is just the start of something GREAT that will impact on many thousands of lives. They believe this is their opportunity to make a difference in the world.
